Customer Reviews

Alice Ravenel Huger Smith . . . artist, naturalist, daughter, Charlestonian . . . at 10, lived through the biggest earthquake to hit the Eastern Seaboard . . . took weekend nature walks through the Lowcountry at the turn of the last century . . . was a product of a close-knit family, and wonderfully caring father, Reconstruction in the South, and the culture that is the Carolina Lowcountry. Through her own words, and with plates of her artwork to illustrate the way, this book is a feast for the eyes and a fascinating journey through her lifetime. Miss Smith was mindful to paint rice fields, marsh-scapes, and people who, now gone, will live eternally through her collection. This book is more than lovely paintings. Through it, we are treated to her artwork, we read her interpretations, and we enjoy her first-hand recounts of lifestyles in earlier times. Ex: She tells of mail delivery in her grandmother's youth. The letter came to the recipient, who went inside the house, then brought out a quarter to pay for its delivery. (No licking stamps, I guess!) On another page she recounts her statement to a northern artist about her inability to paint snow (too rare here!), when he commented on how she painted Spanish moss, which he found most difficult. Buy this book, steep a cup of Earl Grey Tea, and transform yourself back to Charleston, South Carolina during its Renaissance days. Enjoy!

Beautiful water colors. Unfortunately life for some was not. If only everything could have as special as her work. After finishing the book I plan to visit Charleston SC and actually see her art.

Little known southern artist whose work is excellent. The book is her story and her art which will leave you spellbound.

Great book , very interesting... love the color photos of her work... would love to see it in person.

It is his Christmas present. He asked for it and will love it.
